The remarks are suggested by a visit made to the fold John B. Kitching, 37 William street, where Mr. Ericsson's engines, as just completed, is on a small scale; but it is sufficiently large to the principle. Though occupying less than bot of space, and heated only by gas, the eveloped defies the strength of a single man ployel in pumping, and raises three hogs per hour to an elevation of five feet. This is called a "domestic engine," being adapted im a great variety of work ordinarilydone by another caloric engine is located on one of the the North River, and is designed for ships' in this capacity, it promises to accomplish imresults; for our fine large packets and sailing eing unable to carry steam engines, are unresults; for our line large placetons, are un-sing unable to carry steam engines, are un-with the Worthington pump, and therefore folly to rely on manual labor in ridding the mater, in case of leak or other exigency. The ally to rely on manual labor in ridding the water, in case of leak or other exigency. The rengine may be placed in the corner of the galle, almost unobserved, and may be patterntion in fifteen or twenty minutes, saving the rof an entire crew. There being no possibility explosion, or other disaster, the cook is amply fied to officiate as engineer, if desired. The position of the engine is a matter of the least consequence, as it requires little beside air, and can run in the foretop, or upper deck, equally well.

In addition to the above, a beautiful steam yacht has been plying about the harbor for the last ten has been plying about the harbor for the last ten weeks, and is often seen running across from Staten and to Long Island, &c., propelled solely by caloric. This boat is fifty feet the oth, with an eight feet paddle-wheel which works about thirty terms per minute, giving a speed equal to eight or nine knots an hour. The engine is controlled by any one who happens to belong to the party on board. The fuel is either coal or wood. Small oak wood has merally been used, sawed into eight-inch lengths, and incredible as it may seem, only one cord has been used during the last six weeks, though the boat has been run more or less every day! Even after the fires are wholly extinguished, sufficient heat is retained in the metal of the engine (if it has been thoroughly warmed, and is in good working order,) to propel the boat at least two miles. The space occupied by the engine of this boat is not larger than the boiler which the same boat would require if propelled by steam.

pelled by steam.

It is said that the caloric engine can be built on any desired scale of magnitude. Though the principle on which Ericsson's caloric engine was originally built is wholly preserved, the arrangement and nechanism are entirely different—the whole being peluced to a degree of simplicity never before attained an any engine.—Journal of Commerce.

CALIFORNIA BRANDY, in assorted packages, and in quantity to suit purchasers. This Brandy is guaranteed to be a pure distillation of the juice of the Native Grape, and possessing of the stills, and the whole modus operandi, are precisely the same as used in France; in fact, the principal distiller himself has been for many years foreman of a firm celebrated for their
